COMMENTARY ON SECTIONS

Part 6 - Disclosure

Section 117 – Provision of information to prosecutor: solemn cases

582. This section applies to solemn cases. It creates a duty on the investigating agency, (as defined in subsection (4) and not simply restricted to the police), to provide the prosecutor with details of all the information that may be relevant to the case for or against the accused as soon as practicable after the accused's first appearance in court in respect of the proceedings. "Information" includes information that the agency is aware of which was obtained by another agency. If the prosecutor requires the information itself, rather than just the details, the investigating agency must provide it as soon as is practicable.
