- 1.—(1) This section has effect for the purposes of setting out the basis on which the court shall carry out its sentencing functions under this Part. Conditions relating to mandatory and minimum custodial sentences.
- (2) Under section 2 below, when determining whether it would be appropriate not to impose a life sentence the court shall have regard to the circumstances relating to either of the offences or to the offender.
- (3) Under sections 3 and 4 below, when determining whether it would be appropriate not to impose a custodial sentence of at least seven years under section 3(2) or, as the case may be, of at least three years under section 4(2) the court shall have regard to the specific circumstances which—
- (a) relate to any of the offences or to the offender; and

- (3) Where the court does not impose a life sentence, it shall state in open court that it is of that opinion and what the exceptional circumstances are.
- (4) An offence the sentence for which is imposed under subsection (2) above shall not be regarded as an offence the sentence for which is fixed by law.

EFFECT OF CUSTODIAL SENTENCES

CHAPTER I

DETERMINATE SENTENCES

General

Time to be served.

8.—(1) Subject to the following provisions of this Chapter, a prisoner shall be released when he has served his sentence.

(2) In this Chapter “prisoner” means any person who is sentenced to imprisonment for a term in respect of an offence committed after the commencement of this Chapter.

Crediting of periods of remand in custody.

9.—(1) This section applies where—

- (a) a court sentences an offender to imprisonment for a term in respect of an offence committed after the commencement of this section; and
- (b) the offender has been remanded in custody in connection with the offence or a related offence, that is to say, any other offence the charge for which was founded on the same facts or evidence.

(2) It is immaterial for that purpose whether the offender—

- (a) has also been remanded in custody in connection with other offences; or
- (b) has also been detained in connection with other matters.

(3) Subject to subsection (4) below, the court shall direct that the number of days for which the offender was remanded in custody in connection with the offence or a related offence shall count as time served by him as part of the sentence.

(4) Subsection (3) above shall not apply if and to the extent that—

- (a) rules made by the Secretary of State so provide in the case of—
  - (i) a remand in custody which is wholly or partly concurrent with a sentence of imprisonment; or
  - (ii) sentences of imprisonment for consecutive terms or for terms which are wholly or partly concurrent; or
- (b) it is in the opinion of the court just in all the circumstances not to give a direction under that subsection.

(5) Where the court gives a direction under subsection (3) above, it shall state in open court—

- (a) the number of days for which the offender was remanded in custody; and
- (b) the number of days in relation to which the direction is given.

(6) Where the court does not give a direction under subsection (3) above, or gives such a direction in relation to a number of days less than that for which the offender was remanded in custody, it shall state in open court—

- (a) that its decision is in accordance with rules made under paragraph (a) of subsection (4) above; or
- (b) that it is of the opinion mentioned in paragraph (b) of that subsection and what the circumstances are.

(7) The power to make rules under subsection (4)(a) above shall be exercisable by statutory instrument; but no such rules shall be made unless a draft of the rules has been laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament.

(8) For the purposes of this section a suspended sentence shall be treated as a sentence of imprisonment when it takes effect under section 23 of the Powers of Criminal Courts Act 1973 (“the 1973 Act”) and as being imposed by the order under which it takes effect. 1973 c.62.

(9) References in this section to an offender being remanded in custody are references to his being—

- (a) held in police detention; or
- (b) remanded in or committed to custody by an order of a court.

(10) A person is in police detention for the purposes of this section—

- (a) at any time when he is in police detention for the purposes of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984; and 1984 c.60.
- (b) at any time when he is detained under section 14 of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989. 1989 c.4.

Early release

10.—(1) The Secretary of State may at any time release a prisoner if he is satisfied that exceptional circumstances exist which justify the prisoner’s release on compassionate grounds. Early release on compassionate grounds.

(2) Before releasing under subsection (1) above a prisoner who is serving a sentence of imprisonment for a term of three years or more, the Secretary of State shall consult the Parole Board, unless the circumstances are such as to render such consultation impracticable.

11.—(1) This section applies where a prisoner is serving a sentence of imprisonment for a term of more than two months and less than three years. Award of early release days for good behaviour.

(2) For each initial assessment period, the prescribed person may award the prisoner such number of early release days, not exceeding twelve, as he may determine having regard to the extent to which the prisoner’s behaviour during the period has attained the prescribed minimum standard.

(3) For each subsequent assessment period, the prescribed person may award the prisoner—

- (a) such number of early release days, not exceeding six, as he may determine having regard to the extent to which the prisoner’s behaviour during the period has attained the prescribed minimum standard; and
- (b) such number of such days, not exceeding six, as he may determine having regard to the extent to which the prisoner’s behaviour during the period has exceeded that standard.

(4) Where at any time this section applies in place of section 12, 28 or 29 below because a sentence is set aside or varied on appeal, then, for each assessment period for the purposes of this section beginning before that time, the prescribed person shall assume, for the purposes of subsection

(2) or (3) above, that the prisoner's behaviour was such as to entitle him to the maximum number of early release days available under that subsection.

(5) Where any early release days are awarded to a prisoner, any period which he must serve before becoming entitled to be released shall be reduced by the aggregate of those days; but nothing in this subsection shall entitle a prisoner to be released on the basis of an award before the day after that on which the award is made.

(6) Prison rules may—

- (a) require determinations under this section to be made at prescribed times, and to be notified to the prisoners concerned in the prescribed manner; and
- (b) make provision for enabling prisoners to appeal against such determinations to prescribed persons.

(7) The Secretary of State may by order provide that subsections (2) and (3) above shall have effect subject to such amendments as may be specified in the order; but no amendment so specified shall reduce—

- (a) the number of days specified in subsection (2) or (3)(a); or
- (b) the total number of days specified in subsection (3).

(8) The power to make an order under this section shall be exercisable by statutory instrument which shall be subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament.

(9) In this section, in relation to a prisoner—

“assessment period” means—

- (a) the period of two months beginning with the day on which he was sentenced; and
- (b) each successive period of two months ending before his release;

“initial assessment period” means an assessment period beginning less than twelve months after the day on which he was sentenced and “subsequent assessment period” shall be construed accordingly.

Parole Board
recommendation.

12.—(1) This section applies where a prisoner is serving a sentence of imprisonment for a term of three years or more.

(2) As soon as the prisoner has served five-sixths of his sentence, the Secretary of State shall, if recommended to do so by the Parole Board, release him.

Provisional early release days for remand prisoners.

13.—(1) This section applies where an accused is remanded in custody in connection with one or more offences—

- (a) which are alleged to have been committed after the commencement of this Chapter; and
- (b) in respect of which he would be liable, if convicted, to a life sentence or to imprisonment for a term of more than two months.

(2) For the purpose of enabling early release days to be awarded on a provisional basis, subsections (2) and (3) of section 11 above shall have effect as if—

- (a) the accused had been convicted of, or of an offence related to, the offence or any of the offences, and had been sentenced to imprisonment for a term of more than two months and less than three years, on the day on which he was remanded in custody;
  - (b) any days falling after that day for which he is not remanded in custody were disregarded; and
  - (c) references in that section to periods of two months were references to periods of 60 days.
- (3) Subsections (4) to (6) below shall apply if, and only if, each of the following conditions is fulfilled, namely—
- (a) the accused is convicted of, or of an offence related to, the offence or any of the offences;
  - (b) he is sentenced to imprisonment for a term of more than two months and less than three years; and
  - (c) a direction is given under section 9 above.
- (4) For the purposes of section 11(5) above, any early release days provisionally awarded under subsection (2) above shall be treated as early release days awarded on the day on which the direction under section 9 above is given.
- (5) For the purpose of securing that any days for which the accused was remanded in custody are taken into account in determining assessment periods for the purposes of section 11 above, that section shall have effect as if—
- (a) the accused had been convicted and sentenced on the day on which he was remanded in custody;
  - (b) any days which fell before the day on which he was sentenced, and for which he was not remanded in custody, were disregarded; and
  - (c) references to periods of two months, in their application to periods beginning before that day, were references to periods of 60 days.
- (6) If the direction under section 9 above is given in relation to a number of days less than that for which the accused was remanded in custody—
- (a) subsection (4) above shall have effect as if the reference to any early release days provisionally awarded under subsection (2) above were a reference to the appropriate proportion of those days (rounded up to the nearest whole day); and
  - (b) subsection (5) above shall have effect as if the reference to days for which he was not remanded in custody included a reference to the complementary proportion of the days for which he was so remanded (rounded down to the nearest whole day).
- (7) Where for any period the accused has been held in police detention, the prescribed person shall assume, for the purposes of section 11(2) and (3) above as modified by subsection (2) above, that during that period—
- (a) the prisoner had been in prison; and
  - (b) his behaviour had attained, but not exceeded, the prescribed minimum standard for the purposes of that section.
- (8) In this section—

“the appropriate proportion” means the proportion which the number of days in relation to which the direction under section 9 above is given bears to the number of days for which the accused was remanded in custody, and “the complementary proportion” shall be construed accordingly;

“life sentence” has the same meaning as in section 34 below;

“related”, in relation to an offence, has the same meaning as in section 9 above;

and subsections (2), (9) and (10) of section 9 above shall apply for the purposes of this section as they apply for the purposes of that section.

Additional days

Award of additional days for disciplinary offences.

- (a) entitled to be released under section 11 above; or
- (b) eligible to be released under section 12 above, shall be extended by the aggregate of those days.

(3) Nothing in subsection (2) above shall have the effect of extending any such period beyond the end of the prisoner’s sentence, taking into account for this purpose any days directed by the court to count as time served as part of that sentence.

Provisional additional days for remand prisoners.

15.—(1) This section applies where an accused is remanded in custody in connection with one or more offences—

- (a) which are alleged to have been committed after the commencement of this Chapter; and
- (b) in respect of which he would be liable, if convicted, to a life sentence or to imprisonment for a term of more than two months.

(2) For the purpose of enabling additional days to be awarded on a provisional basis, prison rules made by virtue of section 14(1) above shall have effect as if the accused—

- (a) had been convicted of, or of an offence related to, the offence or any of the offences; and
- (b) had been sentenced to imprisonment for a term of more than two months, on the day on which he was remanded in custody.

(3) Subsections (4) and (5) below shall apply if, and only if, each of the following conditions is fulfilled, namely—

- (a) the accused is convicted of, or of an offence related to, the offence or any of the offences;
- (b) he is sentenced to imprisonment for a term of more than two months; and
- (c) a direction is given under section 9 above.

(4) For the purposes of section 14(2) and (3) above, any additional days provisionally awarded under subsection (2) above shall be treated as additional days awarded on the day on which the direction under section 9 above is given.

(5) If the direction under section 9 above is given in relation to a number of days less than that for which the accused was remanded in custody, subsection (4) above shall have effect as if the reference to any additional days provisionally awarded under subsection (2) above were a reference to the appropriate proportion of those days (rounded up to the nearest whole day).

(6) In this section—

“the appropriate proportion” has the same meaning as in section 13 above;

“life sentence” has the same meaning as in section 34 below;

“related”, in relation to an offence, has the same meaning as in section 9 above;

and subsections (2), (9) and (10) of section 9 above shall apply for the purposes of this section as they apply for the purposes of that section.

(2) On his release, the offender shall be subject to a release supervision order—

- (b) in a case falling within subsection (1)(b) above, for a period equal to the aggregate of the period mentioned in paragraph (a) above and the period mentioned in paragraph (c) below;
- (c) in a case falling within subsection (1)(c) above, for a period equal to so much of the remainder of his term as he would have been liable to serve but for his release under section 10 above; and in applying paragraphs (b) and (c) above account shall be taken of any early release or additional days awarded to the offender before his release.

(3) The release supervision order, which shall be made by the Secretary of State, shall provide that, throughout the period for which the order is in force (“the release supervision period”), the offender, so long as he is at large—

- (a) shall be under the supervision of a probation officer; and
- (b) shall comply with such conditions as are for the time being specified in the order.

(4) The Secretary of State—

- (a) shall not specify any condition which—

- (b) a person serving a sentence of imprisonment in any part of the United Kingdom, make an order for his transfer to another part of the United Kingdom or to any of the Channel Islands, there to be remanded in custody pending his trial for the offence or, as the case may be, to serve the whole or any part of the remainder of his sentence, and for his removal to an appropriate institution there.

(2) Where—

- (b) a person has been sentenced to imprisonment in any of the Channel Islands, the Secretary of State may, without application in that behalf, make an order for his transfer to any part of the United Kingdom, there to be remanded in custody pending his trial for the offence or, as the case may be, to serve the whole or any part of his sentence or the remainder of his sentence, and for his removal to an appropriate institution there.

(3) In this paragraph “appropriate institution”—

- (a) in relation to a person remanded in custody, means any prison or other institution;
- (b) in relation to a person sentenced to imprisonment, means, subject to sub-paragraph (4) below, any institution which would be appropriate for the detention of an offender of the same age serving an equivalent sentence passed by a court in the country or island to which he is transferred.

(4) Sub-paragraph (3)(b) above shall have effect in relation to a person serving a sentence of a length which could not have been passed on an offender of his age by a court in the place to which he has been transferred as if it defined “appropriate institution” as meaning such place as the Secretary of State may direct.

Transfer of prisoners for trial

2.—(1) If it appears to the Secretary of State that—

- (a) a person remanded in custody in any part of the United Kingdom in connection with an offence; or
- (b) a person serving a sentence of imprisonment in any part of the United Kingdom,

(3) Where any person is directed under this paragraph to be taken to any place he shall, unless the Secretary of State otherwise directs, be kept in custody while being so taken, while at that place, and while being taken back to the prison or other institution or place in which he is required in accordance with law to be detained.
