2004 CHAPTER 24

PART 6

54 Means of voting in ballots and elections

- (1) The Secretary of State may by order provide, in relation to any description of ballot or election authorised or required by the 1992 Act, that any ballot or election of that description is to be conducted by such one or more permissible means as the responsible person determines.
- (2) A “permissible means” is a means of voting that the order provides is permissible for that description of ballot or election.
- (3) “The responsible person” is a person specified, or of a description specified, by the order.

 - (b) allow the determination of different means of voting for voters in different circumstances;
 - (c) allow a determination to be such that voters have a choice of means of voting.
- (5) The means that an order specifies as permissible means must, in the case of any description of ballot or election, include (or consist of) postal voting.

- (10) The Secretary of State shall not make an order under this section which provides that a means of voting is permissible for a description of ballot or election unless he considers—
- (a) that a ballot or election of that description conducted by that means could, if particular conditions were satisfied, meet the required standard; and
 - (b) that, in relation to any ballot or election of that description held after the order comes into force, the responsible person will not be permitted to determine that that means must or may be used by any voters unless he has taken specified factors into account or applied specified criteria.
- (11) In specifying in an order under this section factors to be taken into account or criteria to be applied by the responsible person, the Secretary of State must have regard to the need for ballots and elections to meet the required standard.
- (12) For the purposes of subsections (10) and (11) a ballot or election meets “the required standard” if it is such that—
- (a) those entitled to vote have an opportunity to do so;
 - (b) votes cast are secret;

- (13) In this section “specified” means specified in an order under this section.
