EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations bring into force provisions of the Public Order Act 2023 (c. 15) (“the Act”). They are the fifth commencement regulations to be made under the Act, but the fourth which extend only to England and Wales.

Regulation 2 brings into force Part 2 of the Act, sections 20 to 33, save for sections 30 and 31 which have already been commenced. Part 2 introduces a new civil order, the Serious Disruption Prevention Order (SDPO). Section 20 provides the power for a court to make an SDPO following a conviction for a protest-related offence. Such an order can only be made where the court is satisfied on the balance of probabilities that the offender has committed another protest-related offence or has been found to be in contempt of court for a breach of a protest-related injunction in the preceding five years (provided the relevant conduct has taken place after the coming into force of this section).

Section 21 provides the power for a court to make an SDPO upon application by the police. Such an order can only be made where the court is satisfied on the balance of probabilities that a person has committed a protest-related offence or has been found to be in contempt of court for breach of a protest-related injunction on at least two occasions in the preceding five years (provided the relevant conduct has taken place after the coming into force of this section).

Sections 22 to 26 set out the provisions and requirements to be included in an SDPO, and make provision regarding the duration of SDPOs.

Section 27 makes it an offence for a person subject to an SDPO to fail to do anything required of them by the order without reasonable excuse, to do anything prohibited by the order without reasonable excuse or to provide information to the police, in purported compliance with the order, that they know to be false. Section 28 makes provision in relation to the variation, renewal and discharge of an SDPO, and section 29 sets out the appeal process where orders under sections 20, 21 or 28 are made or refused.

Section 32 defines the terms used in Part 2 of the Act and section 33 makes consequential amendments.

A full impact assessment has not been prepared for this instrument as the Regulations themselves have no impact on the private, voluntary or public sector.
